21 Ranking Soviets to Face Trial; Accused Of Treason in Purge

Former Premier Alexis I. Rykoff and Nikolai Bukharin, Famed Red Editor, Among Those Accused.

PLAN TERRORISM

Would Overthrow Soviet Regime and Give Foreign Nations Rich Lands.

Moscow, Feb. 28 (AP).—The two leading Soviet newspapers, Pravda and Izvestia, both edited at various times by Nikolai Bucharin, indicated today that death awaited him and twenty others who are to go on trial Wednesday in the latest episode of Joseph Stalin's purge of enemies of his regime.

The stage was set for one of the most sensational of Russia's recent series of trials of fallen Soviet leaders. Treason and murder were the main charges. The list of defendants was larger than in any of the previous Moscow trials.

Pravda, Communist party organ, said the accused would "pay dearly" for the lives of Maxim Gorky, the famous writer, Vyacheslaff Menzhinsky, once head of the secret police, and Vwlerian V. Kuibysheff, chief of the first five-year plan.

The deaths of these three, previously laid to natural causes, were, in part, the basis of charges of a murder-treason plot on which the 21 will be tried before a military tribunal.

Izvestia, the government organ, said "nothing and nobody will save them." Implying that Gorky had been poisoned, Izvestia used the metaphor: "The snake's bite was fatal to the lion."

A former premier, a famous former editor, three prominent physicians, and five former cabinet members were included in the group, accused of crimes ranging from murder to treason.

See Trotsky Link

Although officials failed to make such an announcement, it was assumed that the defendants who allegedly were linked with the exiled Leon Trotsky, already had confessed their guilt. Russian public "trials" have been ordered without confessions beforehand.

In view of the accusations, which the government declares have been substantiated, death before a firing squad was considered a matter of days for most, if not all, the defendants.

Most prominent among the 21 were former Premier Alexis I. Rykoff, who succeeded Lenin and held office for nearly two years; and Nikolai Bukharin, chronicler of the Red revolution and editor of the government newspaper Izvestia before March, 1937.

Next in order were the five former cabinet ministers: Genrikin G. Yagoda, once head of the secret police; Gregory F. Grinkon, former finance commissar; Hyladimir I. Ivwnoff, former chief of the timber industry; W. P. Rosengoltz, once commissar of foreign trade, and M. A. Chernoff, former commissar of agriculture.

They figured largely in the charge, made against the entire group, that they had plotted to overthrow the Soviet regime by terrorism with the aid of foreign powers which would grab rich areas of the Soviet empire as a reward.

Dr. L. G. Levin, head of the Kremlin Hospital; Dr. D. D. Pletnyeff, famous Soviet heart specialist; and Dr. P. N. Kazakoff, head of a large clinic, were accused of the deaths of Gorky, Vyacheslaff Menzhinsky, once head of the secret police, and Kuibisheff, chief of the first five-year plan.

Gorky died June 18, 1936, reportedly of pneumonia complicated by tuberculosis.

It was announced, however, that the British government retained the "complete right for British planes to fly where they will."

Swift Approval of 1938 Budget at Albany Forecast

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 28 (AP).—Swift completion of legislative approval for Democratic Governor Lehman's budget-financing tax program was charted today as the legislature entered what leaders hope will be the "final stretch" of the 1938 session.

As both Houses drove for adjournment by March 15, leaders of the Republican-controlled Assembly planned to initiate predicted favorable action on the governor's tax recommendations tomorrow.

The Democratic Senate, which has approved six of the seven emergency taxes for which the chief executive recommended continuance, will vote tonight on reenactment of the two emergency cent-a-gallon levies on gasoline.

The measures, stamped for approval, were shelved last Thursday for lack of enough Democratic votes to assure passage. Republican opposition to the gas tax in the Assembly is not expected to delay approval of the whole tax program.

Other important measures meantime were steered toward an early Senate vote, including the Lehman-recommended proposals for permitting savings banks to sell life insurance and continuance of the state milk advertising campaign under a $310,000 appropriation.

Public Hearings.

At the same time a series of six public hearings were listed for tomorrow and Wednesday on several controversial proposals still in committee.

Hearings listed for tomorrow will deal with measures that would:

Require examination of marriage license applicants for syphilis within 20 days prior to the application.

Replace children's courts with special service bureaus under the direction of education boards to supervise delinquent children and handle cases of juvenile delinquency and abandonment.

"Modify" the capital gains and loss tax on personal incomes as recommended by Governor Lehman; repeal it outright as proposed by Republican Assemblyman Abbot Low Moffat.

Extension of Provisions

Extend provisions of the emergency mortgage moratorium dealing with deficiency judgments in foreclosure actions to July 1, 1939. A second measure would extend them to January 1, 1943. A third bill would continue the five-year old mortgage moratorium until July 1, 1942, and would require yearly payment of the property owner of at least one per cent of the mortgage principle.

A gradual "tapering off" of the moratorium was recommended by Governor Lehman if possible "without creating hardship" or further disrupting conditions which he said "do not justify its repeal at this time."

Mayor Fiorello La Guardia was expected to speak personally Wednesday at a public hearing before the Senate's public service committee in favor of proposals for abolishing the State Transit Commission and transferring its powers and duties to the New York City Board of Transportation.

Chain Stores Bill

A second hearing is slated that day on a bill to license yearly, at fees ranging from $10 to $55, operators of two more chain

General's Temperature Returns to Almost Normal, Heart Still Carries On

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 28 (AP)—The first bulletin from the bedside of General John J. Pershing today said he had taken fluids through the mouth for the first time in four days.

His physicians last night had said they would become "really hopeful" of the ultimate recovery of the chief of the armies if he could overcome his inability to swallow.

"Although General Pershing had a very restless night he seemed somewhat better this morning and took fluids by the mouth," said the bulletin given out by Dr. Roland Davison.

"He has been conscious much longer periods. His body temperature has returned to almost normal level and the heart is still competent. No oxygen has been administered for 36 hours."

In reply to questions, Dr. Davison said the general's kidneys were "functioning a little now and that helped to relieve the uremic poisoning condition."

Chemical Check

The physician, who with Lieut. Col. S. U. Marietta is attending the World War commander, said a chemical check would be made shortly to determine the amount of uremic poisoning in the blood at this time.

The report was a direct reversal of one released about 7 a. m. (3 a. m. EST) which said the courageous warrior was losing ground again in his endurance contest with many complications.

This bulletin and the general's appearance caused a surge of optimism among friends and relatives.

"He won't be going back on a funeral train at all," said Sergt. C. C. Shaeffer, the general's orderly for 17 years. "He'll get over this. But he'll never be a well man."

Recognizes Son, Sister

Frank Pershing, a nephew, telephoned his wife at Palm Springs, Calif., that "the general can recognize May (the general's sister) and Warren (an only son)."

The doctors said they were continuing treatment which had been decided upon several days earlier. This included heart stimulants, administration of oxygen and intravenous feeding.

It was a week ago today that General Pershing, who had been reported suffering from rheumatism several days, suffered a relapse and was ordered transferred from his hotel quarters to the sanitorium. Colonel Marietta was called in at the same time.

The physicians insisted then

Greenkill Park's Status Remains Deep Mystery

With the advent of spring and better construction weather ahead there is a renewed interest among neighbors as to what "Father" Divine intends to do at Greenkill Park where his "super-heaven" was destroyed by fire last season. At the time it was announced that from the ashes would arise a bigger and better building but after clearing off the debris nothing more was done toward providing the earthly angels with a new shelter from the cold winds of winter. They were distributed about among the other "Heavens" of the Harlem negro.

With the grounds posted against invasion from outsiders and guards posted at various entrances the general public has been barred from the grounds.

Last week John Dellay, who has represented Father Divine in many of his real estate transactions in the county, told a Freeman reporter that he did not know just what was to be done at Greenkill Park.

Prices on Bricks

Following the fire which destroyed the big Greenkill Lodge building Father Dvine had asked him to secure prices on brick to erect a new four-story building about 100 by 100 feet in size. The prices for several hundred thousand brick had been secured and the prices given to the Harlem negro but nothing further had been done. At the time the fact that the Lloyd "heaven" was never rebuilt after that fire, was called to the attention of Mr. Dellay. Following the fire there Father Divine announced that the place would be rebuilt bigger and better than ever but that prediction on the Lloyd premises never materialized. This fact has led many to believe that perhaps the same situation might exist at Greenkill Park.

Asked whether it was possible the Greenkill Park building program was being delayed until spring, Mr. Dellay said he could not say.

Waiting for Word

Father Divine's representative had told Mr. Dellay, he said, that he was waiting for some word from followers in California before the Greenkill Park matter would be decided.

The recent purchase under contract of one of the New York "heavens" of Father Divine by an opposition clan may have some bearing on future activities of the cult in Ulster county. That "heaven" in New York was rented by Father Divine but was not owned by him.

Asked whether Father Divine had bought the former Thompson property at St. Remy, Mr. Dellay said Father Divine had not bought it. He did say, however, that Father Divine had been in Ulster county and had been discussing the purchase of some additional property but nothing definite had been decided upon.

The status of the Greenkill Park "heaven" building program at present seems to be unknown.

Cavorting Car Clips Three Fenders, Upsets New Paltz Milk Truck

Frank Connormon of New Paltz Said to be Driver of Auto on Ride Through Village and Mishaps.

NO ARREST MADE

Connormon Slightly Injured, Leaves Hospital After Treatment on Sunday.

Frank Connormon, 32, of New Paltz, went motoring through the village of New Paltz Saturday evening in his car and as he drove through Main street easterly his car is alleged to have clipped the fenders of three cars on Main street. Then as he reached the left turn near the village bounds at the Adelphe Fraternity House he failed to negotiate the turn and kept on to the right where there was no road.

Parked about 15 feet off the highway was a milk truck operated by Frank Jewett which was stopped on the private proverty of the fraternity house. The Connormon car crashed into the milk truck strewing milk and bottles over the landscape as the milk truck was driven ahead by the impact and overturned. As it was driven ahead the milk truck also struck another parked car which was damaged. The Jewett truck was damaged and had to be towed from the scene to the Dulfos Garage for repairs.

While all this was going on the Connotmon car was also doing stunts. It cavorted about over the landscape and finally overturned with Connotmon underneath the wreckage. Those who viewed the wreckage after the crash marveled that Connormon was not killed. His car was practically demolished.

Leg and Face Injured

Injured about the leg and face, he was treated by Dr. Virgil DeWitt and taken to the Kingston Hospital for observation, but was discharged Sunday.

State Trooper Andy Klein of the New Paltz outpost was called to make an investigation and learned that the Connorman car had been driven easterly through the village toward Highland. He also learned from observers that in its course through the village it had struck three cars just prior to the final crash, but that the damage to the cars was confined to fenders. Connormon, who is employed as a mechanic in Poughkeepsie, then proceeded on up the Highland-New Paltz road to the village bounds where he became involved in the final crash.

No arrest was made at the time and after being treated for the injuries to his leg and face, Connormon was sent to the hospital. According to those who saw Connormon on his jaunt through the town his car was proceeding at a rather fast clip as it went up Main street.

CARS COLLIDE NEAR ACCORD SUNDAY NIGHT.

An automobile driven by John W. Coffey of Kerhonkson was wrecked early Sunday night when it was in collision near Anderson's garage on Route 209, with a car driven by Leonard J. Welter, of 171 West street, Albany.

Deputy Sheriffs McCullough and Young made an investigation. They found that Coffey's car had apparently gotten out of control as he was driving toward Kingston and ran over toward the left side of the road, crashing into the Welter car. The latter, who is a teacher in the Hurleyville union school, was driving toward Ellenville at the time.

None of the occupants of the cars was injured.

G-Men Hold Off Today in New Rochelle Kidnaping Case to Permit Contacts

Schoolboy, Peter Levine, 12, Is Held for $60,000 Ransom—Has Been Missing Since Thursday Afternoon.

SUSPECT HOAX

G-Men Study Case for Possible Self-Abduction Clues Today —Have Doubts.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Feb. 28 (AP)—Murray Levine, New York lawyer, today appealed to the kidnapers of his 12 year-old son, Peter, to contact him without fear of the law. Peter was kidnaped Thursday afternoon.

In an urgent message through the newspapers to the snatchers from whom no word has come since a demand for $60,000 ex h ransom, Mr. Levine said he had been promised by local police "and other investigators" that a "safe channel" would be maintained for contact.

G-men of the New York office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation have been on the case since early Friday morning. They first cancelled a missing persons alarm for the boy which had been sent early Thursday evening. Then they relieved New Rochelle police and took over the case in customary fashion.

Mr. Levine did not indicate in his request for publication of the appeal whether he was ready to pay the $60,000. Friends of the family said they believed it would be impossible for the father to raise that amount.

It was believed Mr. Levine wished to open negotiations seeking first a reduction of the amount and then proof that his boy is alive.

Safe Channel

"This is Mr. Levine," said a voice on the telephone shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon. "You may say that whoever is holding my son is guaranteed a safe channel for communication with me to open negotiations. I have assurances of this from local police and other investigators."

It was under food that the ran om demand was delivered by messenger before the family knew Peter had been kidnaped on his way home from school.

The Levines came to New Rochelle about eight years ago from New York. There is one other child, Helen, 10, a pupil in the fifth grade of Mayflower School. Levine's practice is general with a specialty of business law; he does no criminal and little trial work.

Last spring Levine opened his house here to a large meeting of the league for Spanish democracy but has not been identified since as a leader in the cause; he is a leader in the Zionist movement here.

The kidnaping theory was based on a demand for $60,000 ransom and a squad of G-men from the New York office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were engaged in determining that Peter did not prepare the ransom demand himself.

Alarm Cancelled

Only three detective officers in the New Rochelle Department were told the case was a kidnaping. Even Director of Public Safety Philip J. Tilden was not advised of the status. The G-men took over the case early Friday morning and at 1:16 a. m. cancelled an eight-state police alarm which had been sent out at 6:11 after Peter failed to arrive home for supper.

Peter was due home from school before 4 o'clock. When he did not arrive at 4:30 the household began to worry and his father gave the police a "confidential alarm" on his return from New York at 6 o'clock. The ransom demand came a little later and Reed Vetterli, chief of the G-men in New York, was notified at once. He sent a squad of four men here at once.

No Adequate Motive.

Friends of the Levines were unable to ascribe an adequate motive for the kidnaping. The family is not extremely wealthy but live modestly in a large house at 11 Slocum street. The original squad of G-men here was augmented by other agents in New York who were busy tracing the father's recent cases to determine if he had incurred enmity in the underworld.

Peter was a precocious boy and stood high in the seventh grade at Albert Leonard Junior High School. He admired G-men and talked constantly of their exploits. One investigator suggested he had written the ransom demand himself and samples of the boy's handwriting were being compared with the note under a microscope.

Presence of 3 Boys

A strange angle of the case being investigated today was the presence of three boys about 12, 10 and 8 years old on a New York

Spy Suspects Seized

Johanna Hoffman, 26-year-old hairdresser on the liner Europa and Gunther Gustave Rumrich (both shown above), 27, former U. S. army sergeant together with Erich Glaser, a U. They were arraigned on charges of espionage and held in $25,000 bail each.

4 Pretty Maidens NamedCandidates For Blossom Fete

A garden scene with apple trees blooming in their full glory was the setting Saturday evening in the municipal auditorium for the selection of four girls as candidates for the blossom queen to reign over the Apple Blossom Festival in May.

Paul Zucca's orchestra played as the contestants passed in review before the judges and the audience, and Roger Loughran acted as master of ceremonies, announcing eliminations and introducing the judges.

Each of the 42 contestants, dressed in her smartest street dress, and with fresh curls adorning her head matched down the length of the auditorium and then down the center. Each carried a fan bearing her entry number. Over and over again the group marched; up to the stage, across in front of the judges and around and around on the main floor. The first time they passed across the stage Mr. Loughran introduced each one individually to the judges and the audience, giving her number and telling her sponsor. As each contestant appeared she was given hearty applause by the spectators.

Six times the judges eliminated until finally only five contestants were still gallantly marching around. They kept their poise and their smile all through the long, tense moments and with the sixth elimination leaving only five girls, the excitement of the audience grew. Only one could possibly be eliminated now. Who was it to be? Again the judges went into consultation. Once more groups throughout the audience huddled together as there was much speculation. "No, your wrong, they won't take—out, but they will take Number—out."

Some were right and some were wrong, but most were right as the

C. M. T. C. Opens 1938 Ranks for Summer Training

Lt Col. Frank L. Meagher, who is the chairman of Ulster county C. M. T. C. enrollment, stated this morning that the 1938 C. M. T. C. quota for Ulster county was 29 principals and 11 alternates, or a total of 31.

The boys who went to the 1937 camp will have priority over the new applicants. All of the high school principals of Ulster county as well as Grant D Morey, superintendent of school, Saugerties, are aiding Colonel Meagher with the 1938 enrollment.

Colonel Meagher also stated that March 1 is the official date of enrollment and the applicants will be numbered in order of the receipt of the completed application by the C M T C officer at Governor's Island, New York.

These popular summer encampments will be conducted at five regular army posts for youthful residents of the Second Corps Area, each operating for a 30-day period during July or August. Free of cost to the student and free of obligation for future military service, the C. M. T. Camps are open to young men between 17 and 24 year who are of good moral character and sound physique.

Outdoor Life

Outdoor life under ideal camp conditions, with athletic, rifle or pistol shooting, citizenship studies, and other advantages, is offered to all who enroll for the camp. Transportation going and returning, wholesome food, uniforms, athletic equipment, laundry service, and medical attention are provided by the government.

Outlining the C. M. T. Camps schedule for this summer, the announcement from General McCoy's headquarters said all candidates without prior military training would be assigned as basic students to Plattsburg Barracks, and Fort Niagara, both opening July 5, and to Camp Dix, N. J., opening July 12.

Advanced infantry students also will train at Plattsburg Barracks, Fort Niagara, and Camp Dix at the same time the basic, or first-year, candidates are undergoing training there. Advanced Signal Corps students are to be assigned to Camp Dix during this period.

Coast Artillery advanced students will be instructed at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook N. J., beginning August 2. Field Artillery candidates will attend the advanced course at Madison Barracks, opening on the same date.

Copeland Heads Group

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—Vice President Garner named today a committee of five, headed by Senator Copeland (D., N. Y.), to conduct a Senate investigation of maritime labor conditions.

G-Men Organize Search for Suspects in Huge Spy Ring

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—By plane and train, G-Men fanned out across the nation today in quest of a score or more new suspects in an highly-organized spying which pried into U. S. Army and Navy secrets for cash from an unnamed European power.

Reed Vetterli, head of the New York office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, clamped down a strict silence on apparently fast-growing ramifications of the plot which broke last week with the arrest of two soldiers and a red-haired German woman.

Special agents gathered at the FBI headquarters here last night and received "sealed" instructions from Vetterli.

The destinations of the G-men, setting out to track down other alleged members of the combine, could not be ascertained.

"I cannot discuss the case now," Vetterli told reporters. "No statement of any kind will be made until the case is complete."

Meanwhile, as Col. Thomas Handley tightened the guard at the big U. S. Army base at Mitchel Field, Long Island, where valuable air corps secrets allegedly were stolen by the conspirators, U. S. District Attorney Lamor Hardy promised swift Grand Jury action against the three prisoners seized last week.

Held incommunicado after arraignment and in $25,000 bond each on espionage charges, they were listed as:

Fraulein Johanna Hoffman, 26, a German citizen and native of Dresden, Germany, employed as a manicurist-hairdresser on the North German Lloyd liner Europa, accused by Federal Agents of being the "payoff" agent for the foreign nation;

Gunther Gustave Rumrich, 27, German-educated American citizen a former U. S. Army Sergeant, once stationed in the Panama Canal Zone; and;

Erich Glaser, 28, a private in the 15th Reconnaissance squadron, stationed at Mitchel Field, air defense center for New York city.

Vetterli said Rumrich made a complete confession, including the theft of highly confidential data on Atlantic Coast artillery defenses and the mobilization plan for defending the Panama Canal Zone.

Federal agents broke the case when they trapped Rumrich in an attempt to obtain a batch of American passports, allegedly for fraudulent use of a European nation's secret agents in entering Soviet Russia.

Gain Last Week For Industrials

Although stocks sold off slightly in light trading Saturday the week closed with industrial averages showing a net gain for the week—for the fourth successive week—in the Dow Jones averages. Closing averages for the week were: industrials, 131.26; rails, 30.29; utilities, 20.18. Indications of strength in the market, both securities and commodities, was not borne out by volume of business operations, which continued to reflect the depressed state of trade generally. Steel output was under the preceding week if anything, carloadings, electric power consumption and bank clearings reports were on the down side. There was activity in cotton goods, but not sufficient to cause any increase in mill production.

The apparently more optimistic state of mind, as indicated by the stock market is seen as due possibly to the fact that the indexes of production and distribution have remained at an approximate level since December, permitting the supposition that the industrial decline has ceased; also to indications of reviving demand, less political tension abroad and an apparently more favorable political outlook at home.

It is stated that the Senate "liberals", led by Senator Robert M. Follette of Wisconsin, will make a determined effort to have included in the tax bill a section taxing income from tax-exempt securities. The Supreme Court has held this to be unconstitutional, but the liberals believe that with the court as at present constituted the proposal would receive more favorable consideration.

Shipping companies and mine operators are due to be affected by the continued low level of steel output. Movement of iron ore from the Lake Superior ranges this year is expected to be at least 50 per cent under that of 1937 when a total of 62,598,836 tons was shipped. Last year 312 vessels were engaged in the ore carrying trade when business was at its height.

Alvan Macauley, president of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association, announces that manufacturers will make a national drive next month to reduce the heavy stocks of cars in dealers' hands. The campaign will center on National Used Car Exchange Week, March 5 to 12, and $1,250,000 will be spent in advertising, two-thirds in the newspapers. All auto manufacturers will support the drive, on the basis of 1937 passenger car production.

The AAA yesterday revised the 1938 soil conservation program by cutting 2,000,000 acres from the cotton planting allotment and adding about the same number of acres to corn.

From present indications it is regarded as doubtful whether steel production for the quarter year ending March 31 will reach the 35 per cent average which had been estimated early in January. For the first eight weeks of the year the average has been about 30 per cent.

Directors of Mead Corp. and of Rayonier, Inc., took no action on dividends on common stock. The latter company declared a regular quarterly of 50 cents on preferred.

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—With little news stimulation present, leading stocks went into a low but persistent decline in today's market.

While the ticker tape was ardly lively enough to keep warm, set-backs running 3 or more points were widely distributed near the final hour.

There were intermittent support periods, but these failed to carry through. Transfers were at the rate of about 600,000 shares.

Bonds and commodities were uneven, with trends, on the whole, moderately lower.

Steels, motors, coppers, farm implements, rubbers and miscellaneous issues were prominent among the laggards.

Conspicuous on the downside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, J. I. Case, Oliver Farm, American Telephone, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Seaboard Oil, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Johns-Manville, Allis Chalmers, Union Carbide and General Electric.

Coppers lacked climbing vitality nothwithstanding an advance in the price of the export staple.

SCOUT INVESTITURE SERVICE AT ST. JAMES.

A very impressive investiture ceremony was held at St. James M. E. Church on Sunday evening when Robert Corregan, Robert Langling, Robert MacKinnon, Harry Johnson, Grove Webster were admitted as tenderfoots into Troop No. 11, and Tyler Hughes was transferred from Troop 12.

The service was in charge of Theron Culver, chairman of the troop committee, who charged the candidates in an impressive manner of their duties and responsibilities. He was assisted by 12 Scouts who stated the laws of scouting and explained each one. After receiving the insignia of Scouts, the newly made members were placed in charge of their scoutmaster for advance work in scouting.

Following the investiture service the Rev. Arthur Carroll spoke highly of the achievements of the troop in the church during the year. He brought to the minds of the audience the untold value of any church or city sponsoring such a popular youth movement for peace in the world today.

In conclusion he urged the boys to carry on their good work during the next year, also asking the parents for their utmost enthusiasm in encouraging their boy to do his best for his fellow Scouts and citizens.

Appropriation Bill Faces Test, House And Senate Fight

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—Disagreement between House and Senate over how relief money should be spent jammed the administration's $250,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill in a joint House-Senate committee today.

Senate conferees refused to accept a house-imposed requirement for spreading the money over the next four months with no provision for meeting any new emergency that arises.

Senator Adams (D., Colo.) said the stand of the Senate committee members meant the matter would have to be brought before the entire Senate, possibly this afternoon.

Meanwhile, the Senate took up the administration's long-delayed government reorganization bill, with the prospect of a three-weeks fight that is expected to widen the breach between administration and anti-administration Democrats in the Senate.

On the House side Speaker Bankhead announced the new tax revision bill, to be introduced by the ways and means committee tomorrow after months of work, would be debated 12 hours before amendments were considered.

Questions of unemployment relief and taxation were tied together before the Senate's unemployment committee by Bernard Baruch, New York financier, who blamed government policy for the present condition of business affairs.

He said employment could not be expected to increase until a feeling of security among business men ended the "millions of cautions" which have held back private spending despite vast credit resources.

On the capital gains and undistributed profits taxes, Baruch, personal friend of Mr. Roosevelt, put chief responsibility for halting development of new industries.

He advocated enactment of Wage-Hour legislation.

Before the House Naval Affairs Committee Glenn L. Martin, Baltimore airplane manufacturer, said he thought the government should test, quickly and thoroughly, a reported new "Aerial Mine" with mysterious destructive powers.

Lester P. Barlow, inventor of the device, told Congress recently use of the mine would change drastically the nature of naval and aerial combat.

The present bill, he said, must be enacted in the interest of "economy and efficiency" in government.

Langley Field, Va., Feb. 28 (AP).—A 12,000-mile "good will" visit to South America by six "flying fortresses" of the United States army, was praised today as "a perfect score" that has "justified the air corps and its equipment as well as the entire army." Nazi Uprising In Austria Quelled

Graz, Austria, Feb. 28 (AP).—An incipient Nazi uprising was smothered today by the alert Austrian army.

Swift reinforcement of the Graz garrison frustrated an enthusiastic Nazi scheme to seize control of the city and march on Vienna.

This Syrian metropolis, a hotbed of Nazism, was turned into an armed camp as the government forcibly expressed its determination to maintain peace and order.

Sixteen tanks rolled into the city. Squadrons of warplanes concentrated at Thalerhof airport, ready for instant takeoff. Artillery was emplaced in commanding positions and machine guns covered highways leading into the city. The infantry garrison was strengthened.

In the face of this stern government move, the Nazis temporarily abandoned their plans and announced that a "two day armistice" had been arranged with the government.

Armin Dardieu, one of the Nazi leaders, disclosed that plans had been made for 50,000 men to start the march on Vienna from Graz. He said they were to have been joined by 8,000 from Leopen, 5,000 from Liebnitz, 2,000 from Liezf and smaller detachments from villages throughout the province of Styria.

Police tightened control inside the city, where Nazi fervor during the past few days assumed the magnitude of community hysteria.

No more than two persons were permitted to stand together on the streets. Schools were closed because authorities heard instructors were entering classrooms with "Heil Hitler" greetings to pupils.

OLD-FASHIONED BEHAVIOR.

They were mostly old fogies, no doubt, 200 years ago. Still, they had some virtues that we lack, and perhaps some knowledge that we have forgotten. Here are a few rules of conduct, for instance, that were current in those days:

Every action done in company ought to be with some sign of respect to those who are present.

Sleep not when others speak, sit not when others stand, speak not when you should hold your peace, walk not when others stop.

At play and at fire it's good manners to give place to the last comer and affect to speak not louder than ordinary.

Let your discourse with men of business be short and comprehensive.

Undertake not to teach your equal in the art he himself professes.

Associate yourself with men of good quality if you esteem your own reputation; for 'tis better to be alone than in bad company.

These and many similar bits of good advice are taken from a collection of "Rules of Civility and Decent Behavior in Company and Conversation" compiled by the Rev. James Maryo of Fredericksburg, Va. Young people today may smile at them superiorly, but they seem to have worked then, and might work now. Anyway, a pupil of Mr. Maryo's named George Washington copied them in a notebook, learned them and practiced them, and he got along all right.

ANNUAL ANTHEM.

Agitation for a more satisfactory national anthem than "The Star Spangled Banner" seems to be more or less always with us, especially when the accepted anthem has been rather badly abused at some public gathering. "My Country 'Tis of Thee" was considered ineligible for the honor because its tune was borrowed from the British "God Save the King." Pacifists say the words of "The Star Spangled Banner" are too belligerent and musicians say the tune is too difficult. "America the Beautiful" has worthy sentiments and singable tune, but is probably too literary for the purpose.

However that may be, a committee is now at work searching for a suitable national anthem. In spite of its distinguished members—Dr. Henry Goddard Leach, Lawrence Tibbett, Padraic Colum and Jascha Heifetz—its efforts can hardly be successful unless a song is found which makes an instant and lasting appeal to the public. Truly great national anthems, it is said, spring from the emotions of a people stirred by revolution or foreign war. A democracy, however, ought to be able to create an anthem by peaceful means.

Perhaps we should have a different anthem every year, meeting different popular moods. A few years ago, such a system might have selected "Yes, We Have No Bananas." This year it might turn out to be the Marching Song of the Seven Dwarfs.

CORRECTING THE INCH

Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director of the Bureau of Standards, takes his job very seriously. He is worried about the American inch. In the United States an inch is 25.40005 millimeters long. In Great Britain it is only 25.39996 millimeters. To an ordinary person this difference seems trivial. But Dr. Briggs says it is "intolerable," and he hopes to have it partially corrected by congressional act.

The House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures has responded to his troubled appeal by reporting a bill which would fix the length of the American inch exactly at 25.4 millimeters. The change won't inconvenience industry a particle, says Director Briggs, because nobody can tell the difference—none of its measurements even approach such fineness. This leaves the mathematically innocent layman wondering what's so intolerable about a fraction that nobody uses.

It is a kindly gesture, anyhow. The least Great Britain can do now, in a fine spirit of cooperation and without secret treaty or entangling alliance, will be to lengthen its inch by .00004 millimeter. Providing, of course, Hitler and Mussolini have no objection.

ENGLAND SEEKS FRIENDS

If we won't play with England, Hitler or Mussolini will. And just now the latter is mellowing in that quarter. Senator Borah, who has followed foreign affairs closely for many years, may be right when he says: "I believe the British government has come to the conclusion that an arrangement with the United States is impossible because the American people won't allow it. As a result, she has undertaken to find friends where she can, and if she succeeds in making an agreement with Italy it will drive a wedge between Italy and Germany."

We Americans don't want any truck with the Italian dictator. He has outraged too many things we believe in. And most of us think less of the British government for making terms with him. But Britain is in a tight place. We can't pledge her military or naval support—we don't do that sort of thing any more for anybody. But if we don't give her and the British dominions moral support and a reasonable amount of economic and diplomatic cooperation, we can't blame them for making friends where they can.

GOOD CIRCULATION

Years ago when it was found that rest, fresh air, and rich nutritious food would halt the progress of tuberculosis, it was not unusual to see these patients return to their homes, plump, with a good color, and apparently perfectly well. In a few months or even weeks it was noticed that this weight was gradually being lost, that the appetite was poor, and the cough was returning. Another stay in the sanatorium then became necessary.

The loss of weight and strength in many of these cases was due to the fact that the individual did not follow the method of living taught him in the sanatorium; he became careless about his rest periods, food and the outdoors. In the majority of cases the loss of weight and strength and the return of the symptoms of tuberculosis were due to the fact that the patient had rested almost entirely at the sanatorium and had taken no exercise whatever. Thus when he returned home and attempted to do some physical work, there was no strength in muscles, heart and lungs, and the relapse followed.

One institution with which I am familiar, more than 25 years ago began giving the patients some regular exercise daily once the temperature was down to normal. The exercise at first was just fifteen minutes daily — a short, slow walk. The exercise was gradually increased so that by the time the patient was ready to leave the sanatorium he could do about five hours' light work daily. This meant that when he returned home he was able, by continuing his proper habits of living, to take some light employment.

In a recent issue of the Swiss Medical Journal Dr. Voute of the High Mountain Sanatorium directed attention to the fact that as the result of prolonged rest—no exercise at all—the heart muscle and the muscles of the chest become weakened. To overcome this, light gymnastic exercise was given. When this work or exercise treatment is begun the rest periods should be gradually reduced so that when the patient is discharged from the sanatorium, he requires at the most two hours' rest daily.

The thought is that if patients with tuberculosis to whom rest has brought about a cure, should have regular exercise and should rest not more than two hours daily, what about those of us who are well? Certainly our heart and chest muscles should get daily exercise if we are to have a good circulation of pure blood throughout the body.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

BY ALAN LEMAY

SYNOPSIS: Our love for a young English girl has kept my uncle, James Clyde, and myself (Paul Thorne) in tropical Balingong through a Dyak revolt and Malay defeat. Christine Forrester, visioning a great empire here, has made Clyde rajah. Clyde antagonizes the sultan's representative, Rentongen, by trying to end the traditional depredations of the Malays. War threatens. In the pouring rain we are paddling down-river with Christine and her sick brother who are finally leaving this fever-ridden spot.

Chapter 36

Whanging Nerve Strain

"YOU'VE heard Rentongen talk," I said. "You know how bitter he's become."

"I've heard him often," Christine agreed. "But—lately it has seemed to me that we have heard very little from him. Perhaps I've been foolish to hope; but I've been hoping that the Malays were becoming reconciled. It's weeks since we've had a really vigorous complaint from Rentongen."

"That's just what worries me," I told her. "Something is happening in the background; I see evidences of it, but I can't find out what it is. I know what I think it is. Something has happened to Mantusen. We haven't heard from Mantusen, or Saremba, since Mantusen sailed. I think Mantusen's deal with Clyde angered his sultan. It's Rentongen now who represents Massin Ali—and I think he has his orders."

"I've thought of that," Christine admitted. "I've thought of it often. We should have heard from Saremba long ago."

"I think we're going to hear from them in a way that we won't like."

"And all this is what you're making me run away from," Christine said.

"We'll handle it a whole lot better without you here."

Her voice lashed at me hysterically, like a whip across the face. "You've got to stop talking to me like that!"

"I'm sorry."

We were coming to the mouth of the Siderong, and I could smell salt water. For a moment some trick of the torches showed us the jungle wall, a black lacquer palisade webbed over by giant creepers. Our roof was beginning to soak through, putting an occasional drop of luke-warm water down our necks.

Perhaps that cramped shelter of matting over our heads was what had given me the sense of being near to Christine for a while; whatever it was, that feeling dropped away as we now crossed Siderong bar. There was open sea ahead, and Christine would soon be beyond it; but she would hardly be farther away from me than she was already.

I said, "We're going to pull this thing through. I promise you that. I admit I don't know how we're going to do it. But it will be done."

Her face was as lovely as I had ever seen it, but it was no longer close to me. For a little while it had seemed to me that I could have reached out and touched it. Not with my hands alone, for that would have been easy enough, there in the bankong—but with a feeling of possession and a knowledge that her face was held between my fingers because she wanted it to be. That was all gone now; this was Anthony Forrester's daughter again, with her grave clear eyes set on a future in which I could see no part for myself.

"Clyde will win this," I said. "That is a hard man to stop."

Christine faltered. "There is so much danger ahead—"

"That's what makes a victory out of it. Otherwise it would be just a trade."

Change Of Mind

"YES," she said slowly, "that is true. This will be the greatest thing that has ever happened in the islands, when it is done."

"Clyde," I agreed, "will have a nice thing here some day."

I was watching her profile, dimly seen by the torchlight, but very near; I was unwilling to lose one moment of memory of her. She turned now, and looked at me very straight, but with a curious expression in her eyes.

"Of course, some day all of this will be yours."

I knew that this was not so; I had helped Clyde to draft his will. I knew that all Clyde's claim on Balingong raj, and everything in it, was deeded to the Ranee Christine.

"The hell with it," I said.

"You—you don't want it?"

"No."

"But, Paul, you've given so much of yourself—"

"What I want is to sit on a cool veranda overlooking the sea, and take a good rest, and drink a sloe gin fizz. The Harbor Club at Singapore has a better veranda for that than Clyde will have in years."

She turned her face away from me and she was very still. Far up ahead we could see the lights of Robert Forrester's bankong, already well out on the bay.

"I think," Christine said, her voice distant, "that we should go alongside the other boat."

I called out an order, and my paddlers picked up their beat. The bankong began to lift and drive over the water. We were nearly at the end of it now. In a little while more what magic there was in Balingong was going out of it, and nothing would be left of the thing this girl had bewitched us into except war and fever, and a struggle against going broke. There were years of it ahead without anything in them that a reasonable person would want. Yet I knew that Clyde could not quit, and neither could I. And I knew that we were fools.

We were alongside Robert Forrester's bankong; we were under the Avon's black hulk. Clyde and Marvin Stocker were calling back and forth. Christine groped for my hand, and for a moment pressed it against her cheek; her face was wet, but it was impossible to tell now whether with rain or tears. Then abruptly she threw my hand away.

"I can't do it," she said. "It's too much to ask."

"You can't—what are you talking about?"

She was silent for a long moment. Then she called out across the narrow strip of black water.

"Goodby, Bob. . . . I'm going back."

I would have supposed that our life here would now go on as before, unaffected by the fact that Christine had made a false start at departure, but balked. But it was not the same as before—nothing could have been more different.

Harassed By Desperation

A TAUT, hard strain came upon both Clyde and me, in spite of everything Christine could do to make things smooth. After we had got over the first shock of the idea that she was going to stay with us we had the feeling that Balingong must somehow be pulled and hauled and hammered into a fit place for Christine. It must be done immediately—and it was impossible. Clyde and I fought our work harder than ever before, harassed by an unsleeping desperation. That whanging nerve-strain, in itself, later accounted for many things.

I made no further move to persuade Christine that she must leave Balingong. I had already done all I could, and perhaps more than was appropriate; it was hardly my place to try to send away the girl with whom my uncle was in love. And Clyde, although he agreed that she should not be here, seemed strangely baffled.

I took to avoiding them both as much as I could, which was easy, for I was now seldom in Balingong. The need of protecting the Dyaks from Malay extortions increased in importance as the famine had now reached proportions of real calamity.

In the previous year most of the Dyaks had delayed planting until it was all but too late—in the case of some villages too late altogether—for no better reason than that the magic auguries were unfavorable. Throw against the poor crop the waste and spoilage of war, and it is hard to see why they expected anything but famine.

When a one-crop food supply runs out it runs out suddenly; most villages had come to the end of their rice long ago, and it was very difficult to see how they lived at all. It was a fortunate thing that whatever rice was going to be planted was already in the ground, for I am certain that in their extremity the people would have eaten the seed. They knew better than that, and it was against custom, but these people were at the end of their string. Game was scarce, and the fishing bad. The situation could hardly have been any worse.

Daily the Siderong before the bamboo palace was banked with the praus of people who had come to beg the white rajah for aid. We did what we could; but if we were able to give a few handfuls of rice to the exhausted men at the paddles we could no longer expect to do anything more.

The jungle was stripped of everything fit to eat, and it was strange to see so much vegetation and yet so little food. The people were eating weeds, and soup made of boiled grasses and scraped moss. They ate the bark of trees, and even weighted their poor flat stomachs with a kind of clay found on the river banks.

It was a temptation to send our vessels to distant islands with our precious store of rifles, to trade for food where and however we could. But we knew this would have been fatal. It would not only have finished us, but would have finished Balingong. We had to sit there and endure it while we watched the people die.

IT'S ODD

But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

New York—Rumor, looking for a Jules Verne victim, has picked on Einstein.

The story spread in France and England. "Einstein," its printed version reads, "is planning a daring experiment of descending into the deepest part of the Pacific shortly in a special apparatus he already has constructed. The scientist hopes with stones and other material he will find there to obtain data for a new hook on the history of the world."

Einstein's associates here said they were sure no geological work was contemplated and they suggested the submarine device might have been invented earlier in Einstein's career.

The story apparently arose from recent interest of geologists in the bottoms of the oceans. Interest was inspired by the fact that a new device enables them to drill fair sized cores out of the sea bottom a mile or more down. With these rocks they are trying to solve the origin of submarine canyons.

The canyons are like those made by surface rivers.

Another possible source of the rumors is Otis Barton's projected diprobenth. This is to be a bathysphere, or steel ball, on wheels, to go down one mile, and be rolled along for some scientific sight-seeing.

The deepest parts of the Pacific are miles below anything man can now reach. Mt. Everest, in one of those Pacific "deeps," would be far submerged.

Historic Houses of Kingston

Freeman Photo

No. 28.—Tobias Swart House.

On the south side of Main street, about midway between Wall and Green streets, stands the old Tobias Swart house, now the residence of Mrs. M. V. Pennington.

The house as it appears in the picture, would not give the impression of being very old because the front wall is faced with brick, but an inspection of the side and rear walls show the original old limestone blocks which were used in the construction of the houses built in Kingston before the Revolutionary War. And behind the covering of brick on the front, is the original stone wall ranging in thickness from 20 to 24 inches. The windows of the present house are not those of the historic old place, but it is thought that at one time the house had two windows located on each side of the front portal.

A sign on the front wall designated the house as the residence of John Van Steenbergh at the time of the invasion of the British troops during the Revolutionary War when the house was burned, but we find that the late Everett Fowler, who carried on considerable research concerning Kingston's old houses, and also Schoonmaker's History of Kingston, record the place as the home of Tobias Swart. From this we surmise that Tobias Swart was the original owner and builder but was evidently not living there in 1777. Further proof of the fact that Tobias Swart resided in the house before the Van Steenberghs is found in an old record which states that in 1820 Peter Van Steenbergh, a watchmaker, was living in the house and was conducting his business in a small frame addition on the east end.

Mrs. Pennington has endeavored to restore much of the interior to its original style. The house, without an addition which has been placed on the rear, is oblong in shape with a hall running through the center from front to back. A large room is located on each side of this hall and the beams holding the upper floor, are evident in the ceiling. At one time these beams were sealed, but the present owner has uncovered them in her effort to restore the interior. This also brings to view the wide planking used as the floor of the upstairs, which contains three rooms which have been remodeled by past owners. There is also a half-cellar under the house.

The house, especially when one observes the interior of the two first-floor rooms, is definitely one of the substantial dwellings of the early settlers who were instrumental in laying the foundations for the present city of Kingston.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Yesterday I went down to Trinity churchyard and strolled for an hour among the crumbling tombs of departed heroes!

Time has meant little to this Abbey-on-Hudson, where Peter Stuyvesant once nursed his gout and listened to interminable sermons in Dutch. It still retains an aura of Queen Anne, despite an ever encroaching acropolis of modern skyscrapers, and one may still catch the brooding spirit of those times by passing quietly among the blackened slabs and taking note of the fading epitaphs, which, occasionally, were recorded in an English that goes clear back to Chaucer.

For Trinity was a burial tract even before it became the richest church in the world. The oldest grave in it is that of a 5-year-old child who died in 1681.

Close at hand "lyes the body of John Craig, who departed the Transotorey Life Sept. 14th, 1747." . . . And a step beyond is the grave of a British army officer, Sydney Breese, who composed this epitaph for his tombstone: "Ha, Sydney, Sydney! Lyest Thou here? I here lye. 'Til Time is flown to its extremity."

* * *

HERE, too, is buried Alexander Hamilton, killed in a duel by Aaron Burr, and at his side, under a time-yellowed slab, Hamilton's widow, "the daughter of a soldier of the revolution."

If shades may be said to be restless, then Hamilton's bones must have turned over ceaselessly, for a few feet away lies Matthew David, "the last friend that Aaron Burr possessed on earth."

* * *

ROBERT FULTON, who perfected a steamboat, and Captain James Lawrence, who said "Don't give up the ship" lie close to the Broadway entrance.

Wandering through this labyrinth of tombs, one is reminded of the brooding melancholy of Addison, who, more than 200 years ago, visited Westminster Abbey and wrote: "When I look upon the tombs of the great, every emotion of envy dies in me; when I read the epitaphs of the beautiful, every inordinate desire goes out; when I meet with the grief of parents upon a tombstone, my heart melts with compassion; when I see the tomb of the parents themselves, I conside the vanity of grieving for those whom we must quickly follow; when I see kings lying by those who deposed them; when I consider rival wits placed side by side, or the holy men that divided the world with their contests and disputes, I reflect with sorrow and astonishment on the little competitions, factions, and debates of mankind."

More Tiger Talk

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE little gnome-like man Willy Nilly was talking to his wild animal visitors who were staying in the Empty House for the winter season.

He had just heard the tigers say that they thought it was wise to be quiet.

"I suppose it is," answered Willy Nilly doubtfully, not quite knowing what the tigers meant. The biggest tiger continued talking to Willy Nilly.

"So many people," the tiger said, "think the lion is the king of the beasts because he makes a great fuss about himself. That is, he roars."

"Well?" asked Willy Nilly. "Isn't he?"

"He is a big and powerful beast. But our ways are not the ways of lions. The lion goes out into the open, which we do not care to do. We want to be safe," answered the tiger.

"The lion can be found more easily. We stay where it is thick and very, very dark. We do not want to be found. We do not want to be hunted.

"It is difficult to find creatures in the dark—creatures who are quiet. Let the lion be considered more magnificent, more powerful than we are. Let him be better known. Let him go out into the sunshine which we will not do. The sunshine is beautiful, but it is too bright. It is more beautiful to be safe.

"That is why I say that all tigers know it is wise to be quiet. We are not going to be driven off the earth the way it has almost happened with some animals who have been hunted too much.

"We do not care if people do not think we are so important. We want to live!"

ARE YOU ALL NERVES?

Binghamton, N. Y.—Mrs. Francis Cooper, 160 N. Griswold St., says: "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was such a splendid tonic for me that I take this occasion to tell other women about it. The 'Prescription' seemed to be just what I needed. It helped to stimulate my appetite and I gained weight and strength and I was relieved of a nervous feeling." Baltimore—It was a dull night for Baltimore police until—

"We've found a dead man with his head and leg cut off," panted Richard McCrone, 12, to Desk Sergt. Frederick D. Brown.

The homicide squad found the victim in a darkened doorway in the warehouse district.

It was a dummy.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

Eager Young Offspring—What are ethics, Pop?

Father—Well, Junior, I'll tell you. Suppose a customer comes into my shop and buys a tie that costs a dollar. He gives me a two-dollar bill, and walks out without the change. Now, here's where the ethics come in. Should I keep the extra dollar myself, or tell my partner about it.

Somebody has asked what has become of the old-fashioned camp meeting exhorter. The last we heard he was pleading with radio listeners to buy a certain cosmetic.

A certain woman is out to wage a campaign against the zipper craze. "I bought a zipper foundation," she whispered to a friend at a dinner party recently, "and the darn thing has given me a regular appendix operation scar."

Young Bill—I think we are much better today than in your time—better than we were thousands of years ago—even the babies swore in the olden days.

Grandpa (gasping)—How do you make that out?

Young Bill—Why, it says in the Bible that Job cursed the day he was born.

Breakfast Chat is what the Christian Science Monitor calls this one. Looks like sarcasm to us:

Mrs. Wypple (at breakfast)—Are you all right?

Mr. Wypple—Of course I am. Why do you ask?

Mrs. Wypple—You look a bit changed. I suppose I notice it more than those who are with you constantly.

An old maid created quite a stir in the local seed store the other day. She walked in and asked the clerk to give her instructions on how to sow wild oats.

Doctor—You had a pretty close call. It's only your strong constitution that pulled you through.

Patient—Well, doctor, remember that when you make out your bill.

Teacher (pointing to a deer at the zoo)—Johnny, what is that?

Johnny—I don't know.

Teacher—What does you mother call your father?

Johnny—Don't tell me that's a louse!

Scrambled Slogans

"It's Boasted"—Lucky Strikes.
"The Danger Line—Air Line.
"They Satisfy"—Haig & Haig.
"Ask the man who hones one"—Gillette.
"The tin you love to touch"—Ford.
"The Ham What .Am"—Any movie actor you love to hate.

Nicknames require explanation in many instances. This one is apt after you know. The teacher was curious to know why the boys called one of their number "Weatherstrip", so asked him how he got his nickname. "Because I kept my father out of the draft," the youngster replied. "I was born during the war."

Willie at the zoo)—Gee, Maw, that monkey looks just like Daddy!

Mother (heatedly)—Why, Willie, aren't you ashamed of yourself?

Willie—Aw, gee whiz, he can't understand what I say!

"Sugar and spice and everything nice, that's what little girls are made of!" This pleasing thought is dusted off and presented to our readers who otherwise may be overwhelmed by an overdose of advertising warning said girls against the perils of b. o., halitosis, lordosis, and whatnot.

NEW PALTZ NEWS

CONFERENCE HELD AND PASTOR IS RETURNED.

New Paltz, Feb. 26.—The congregational supper and conference at the Methodist Church Tuesday night was well attended and all enjoyed the fun and business meeting which followed. Dr. Peter C. Weyant, the district superintendent was present and conducted the conference, which included the reviewing the work of all the organizations of the church and the attempt to evaluate present conditions and to plan the work for the coming year. A complete report of the finances was made. It was recalled that $1,250 must be raised for the building fund before August 1 was much of a challenge to all. Appreciation was expressed for the generosity of all who have helped to better the financial condition of the church. The committee on pastoral relations moved the minister be invited to return. The motion was carried to have the Rev. Alfred H. Coons remain for another year.

ARE YOU ALL NERVES?

Binghamton, N. Y.—Mrs. Frances Cooper, 160 N. Griswold St., says: "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was such a splendid tonic for me that I take this occasion to tell other women about it. The 'Prescription' seemed to be just what I needed. It helped to stimulate my appetite and I gained weight and strength and I was relieved of a nervous feeling." Baltimore—It was a dull night for Baltimore police until—

"We've found a dead man with his head and leg cut off," panted Richard McCrone, 12, to Desk Sergt. Frederick D. Brown.

The homicide squad found the victim in a darkened doorway in the warehouse district.

It was a dummy.

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

Eager Young Offspring—What are ethics, Pop?

Father—Well, Junior, I'll tell you. Suppose a customer comes into my shop and buys a tie that costs a dollar. He gives me a two-dollar bill, and walks out without the change. Now, here's where the ethics come in. Should I keep the extra dollar myself, or tell my partner about it.

Somebody has asked what has become of the old-fashioned camp meeting exhorter. The last we heard he was pleading with radio listeners to buy a certain cosmetic.

A certain woman is out to wage a campaign against the zipper craze. "I bought a zipper foundation," she whispered to a friend at a dinner party recently, "and the darn thing has given me a regular appendix operation scar."

Young Bill—I think we are much better today than in your time—better than we were thousands of years ago—even the babies swore in the olden days.

Grandpa (gasping)—How do you make that out?

Young Bill—Why, it says in the Bible that Job cursed the day he was born.

Breakfast Chat is what the Christian Science Monitor calls this one. Looks like sarcasm to us:

Mrs. Wypple (at breakfast)—Are you all right?

Mr. Wypple—Of course I am. Why do you ask?

Mrs. Wypple—You look a bit changed. I suppose I notice it more than those who are with you constantly.

An old maid created quite a stir in the local seed store the other day. She walked in and asked the clerk to give her instructions on how to sow wild oats.

Doctor—You had a pretty close call. It's only your strong constitution that pulled you through.

Patient—Well, doctor, remember that when you make out your bill.

Teacher (pointing to a deer at the zoo)—Johnny, what is that?

Johnny—I don't know.

Teacher—What does you mother call your father?

Johnny—Don't tell me that's a louse!

Scrambled Slogans

"It's Boasted"—Lucky Strikes.
"The Danger Line—Air Line.
"They Satisfy"—Haig & Haig.
"Ask the man who hones one"—Gillette.
"The tin you love to touch"—Ford.
"The Ham What .Am"—Any movie actor you love to hate.

Nicknames require explanation in many instances. This one is apt after you know. The teacher was curious to know why the boys called one of their number "Weatherstrip", so asked him how he got his nickname. "Because I kept my father out of the draft," the youngster replied. "I was born during the war."

Willie at the zoo)—Gee, Maw, that monkey looks just like Daddy!

Mother (heatedly)—Why, Willie, aren't you ashamed of yourself?

Willie—Aw, gee whiz, he can't understand what I say!

"Sugar and spice and everything nice, that's what little girls are made of!" This pleasing thought is dusted off and presented to our readers who otherwise may be overwhelmed by an overdose of advertising warning said girls against the perils of b. o., halitosis, lordosis, and whatnot.

NEW PALTZ NEWS

CONFERENCE HELD AND PASTOR IS RETURNED.

New Paltz, Feb. 26.—The congregational supper and conference at the Methodist Church Tuesday night was well attended and all enjoyed the fun and business meeting which followed. Dr. Peter C. Weyant, the district superintendent was present and conducted the conference, which included the reviewing the work of all the organizations of the church and the attempt to evaluate present conditions and to plan the work for the coming year. A complete report of the finances was made. It was recalled that $1,250 must be raised for the building fund before August 1 was much of a challenge to all. Appreciation was expressed for the generosity of all who have helped to better the financial condition of the church. The committee on pastoral relations moved the minister be invited to return. The motion was carried to have the Rev. Alfred H. Coons remain for another year.

Archie Failed to Keep Agreement But Judge Didn't

Archie Bolyard, of Buffalo, found today that it did not pay to fail to keep an agreement made with Judge Matthew V. Cahill, when he was arraigned before the judge in police court. Bolyard had been arrested last Friday on a charge of panhandling and Saturday morning in police court he was given a sentence of 30 days in jail, but the serving of the sentence was suspended provided he was out of town by noon. The reason for the suspension of sentence was due to the fact that Archie said he had a job waiting for him in Ellenville.

However, Archie failed to get out of town and was picked up about 6 o'clock that afternoon for panhandling on Broadway. With him was Philip J. Dotto, of Buffalo, who was also arrested for panhandling.

This morning in police court Archie pleaded for another chance, and said he had meant to keep his word with the judge but thirty miles was quite a ways to walk, and that was why he was panhandling to raise funds to pay his bus fare.

"Well I will keep my agreement with you," replied Judge Cahill, and sentenced Archie to 30 days in the county jail.

As this was the first time that Archie's friend, Dotto, had appeared here in court the judge imposed a sentence of five days in jail.

Joseph McCloskey, of Lowville, picked up for public intoxication on Railroad avenue on Sunday afternoon was fined $10.

Robert A. Kelly, of 66 Flatbush avenue, arrested on a charge of operating his car on Broadway with but one headlight lit, was given an opportunity of installing another bulb in the headlight.

Joseph O. Gagne, of Cottekill, arrested for public intoxication on North Front street, was given a suspended sentence as it was the first time he had ever been arrested.

James Casey, of Chichester, arrested on a charge of trespassing on railroad property, was given 30 days in jail. Casey has appeared in police court several times during the last few months.

Mrs. Margaret Bertrand, chairman of the unit, would be gratified to have a large attendance and urges Kingston members to make it 100 per cent.

Children See Demonstration

Woodstock, Feb. 28.—Woodstock school children gathered in the gallery of the Woodstock Artists' Association on Friday afternoon to watch a demonstration of how a painting and a charcoal drawing are made. Karl Fortess started a small landscape painting, with mountains, trees, and, at the special request of the children, a few crows in the trees. The child writing the best composition on the demonstration will be given the painting when it is completed. Walter Sarff selected Dicky Lapo for a model and made a charcoal drawing of him. Dicky received a box of charcoal for his services as model. The children were very interested in the program, and enjoyed looking at the exhibition of paintings, prints and sculpture by members of the Ulster County Artists Union. The program was sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association, who have arranged a series of similar interesting meetings.

GARDINER YOUTH HELD ON GRAND LARCENY CHARGE

William Gray, 18-year-old colored youth of Gardiner, was committed to the Ulster county jail to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny following arraignment before Justice Joseph Deyo of Gardiner Saturday.

Gray, who was arrested by Corporal Mahoney and Trooper Klein, is charged with having taken an automobile owned by John Gillis and valued at $450. He claims to have had permission to use the car.

Public Intoxication Arrests

Week-end arrests for public intoxication included Peter Forestier, 39, of Calgary, Canada, who was arrested at Highland by Corporal Mahoney and John Billesimo, 48, of Marlborough, who was arrested at Marlborough by Sergeant Hulse. Forestier was held for arraignment before Justice U. Parker Decker. Billesimo was taken before Justice John Rusk, Jr., who gave him five days in the Ulster county jail.

Fort Christian, built in 1671, now serves as a police station in Charlotte Amalie, capital of St. Thomas island.

Bruce's 3 Points Win for Spencers Over Albany Five

Alva Bruce starred for the Spencer Business School basketball team in its overtime victory over the Albany Business College, Saturday night at the Y. M. C. A. With the last few seconds ticking away and the visitors leading 30-28, Bruce cut in for a push-up, being fouled as he dumped the calfskin into the net. He made good on his free throw as the whistle sounded, winning for Spencers, 31-30.

The game was close from the beginning and the lead see-sawed back and forth. The first quarter ended with Spencer's leading 10 to 8 as Hank Krum accounted for six, Rhymer and Bruce for two apiece. The scoring in the second quarter was scarce and only two points were scored by Albany. The second half was similar to the first and ended with the score tied at 28-28. Hank Krum was the star of this part of the game also. He scored eight points in this half.

The boxscore:

Important Games In City League Closed Division

Tuesday's schedule in the Closed Division of the City Basketball League at the municipal auditorium is as follows:

Fullers vs. J. Y. A., 7:30.
Forsts vs. Hercules, 8:30.
Central Hudson vs. K. of C., 9:30.

These contests will practically determine the top positions in the Closed Division as they are the second last set of duels in this part of the City League.

The K. of C. and Forsts are tied for first place, having gone through the second half undefeated. Both meet tough opposition tomorrow night.

Eastern College Cage Schedule

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Dartmouth's Indians with an assist from Columbia, can settle the Eastern Intercollegiate League basketball title chase within the next 48 hours—a nice trick if they can do it.

The Big Green, league leaders since early in the season, faces Princeton's last place quintet at Princeton tonight and Harvard, in second place and the only team with a real chance to overhaul the Indians, meets Columbia in the Jinx-bound Lion gym, Tuesday night. A win for Dartmouth and a loss for Harvard and it's all over.

Dartmouth ran into the Columbia Jinx Saturday and dropped a fast game, 48 to 37. Harvard, presented with a golden opportunity, couldn't do anything about it and lost to Pennsylvania in Philadelphia's Palestra 40 to 35. In the third game of the day, Cornell just managed to beat mediocre Princeton 43 to 42 and raised its average to .500.

In the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference race Pittsburgh trimmed Carnegie 36 to 30 Saturday night.

Fall Loses Race For Janet Milne

Fort Johnson, N. Y., Feb. 28 (AP)—They finally beat Miss Janet Milne, 18-year-old chunky Saranac Lake speed skater who has won six titles this winter, including the coveted North American crown.

A leading contender for the postponed Sir Silliam Johnson bicentennial championship for women, Miss Milne fell at the last turn of the half miler race and lost the crown to Alice Mazuzan of Lake Placid.

Yesterday, winter sports enthusiasts turned to a dog derby at Ogdensburg and ski races and a series of harness races over ice at Lake George.

E. Darraug of Hull, Ont., won the renewal of the international dog team races at Ogdensburg with one dog disabled.

Claude Adams, Jr., of Glens Falls scored a total of 1133.8 points in the downhill, slalom and cross country ski races at Lake George to win the meet while Atkinson, owned and driven by Walter Blair of Lake George, captured the Class A free for all ice trotting race.

Comforters vs. Lutherans.

The darthall team of the Church of the Comforter will play the Trinity Lutheran tossers at Comforter Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

Albany Wrestling Show Tuesday

Royalty, in the person of comely Princess Baba of Sarawak, will have a ringside seat at the wrestling show featuring Danna O'Mahoney of Ireland, and Yvon Robert of Montreal, at Tenth Infantry Armory, Albany, Tuesday night.

The Princess will be a spectator because her husband, Bob Gregory, light heavyweight champion of the British Empire, will tangle with Lester Ryan of Boston, in an added attraction that will run until one or the other scores a fall. Gregory has wrestled three times in this country and has won all three bouts in convincing fashion. The speedy Britisher has shown the fans some new and thrilling holds.

The other three bouts on the five bout card follow:

Joe Cox, Kansas City, will tangle with Ralph Garibaldi, younger brother of Gino, in the 45 minute semi final, while in the 30 minute prelims, Mike Mazurki, Colues, will meet Reb Russell, of Texas, and Jack League, also of Texas, will come to grips, or blows, with Leo Hyatt, the Vermont badman.

The first bout will go on at 8:30 o'clock.

Indoor Tennis At 7th Armory

New York, Feb. 28 (AP) — If Gregory Mangin, top-ranking easterner in the men's national indoor singles championship, which resumes today at the Seventh Regiment armory, should be blasted out of the tournament before the semi-finals, it will surprise no one less than Mangin himself.

For the 30-year-old New Yorker, who won the title for the fourth time in 1936 and is the only ex-champion in the field, is playing strictly on his reputation.

Saturday, in his opening match, he had all he could do to dispose of Charley Gilbert, a stubborn young red-head from Columbia university, whose own errors when he had Mangin on the run were more to blame for his defeat than anything Greg did. Mangin finally won at 7-5, 8-6, and was puffing heavily when he left the court.

Today he was matched with William Thompson, a Brooklyn youngster, as part of the second-day program that also saw the start of the women's singles competition. Helen Pedersen, Stamford, Conn., girl who stands eighth in national ranking, was No. 1 in a seeded group of four.

At The Theatres

PREVIEWED

Broadway: "The Buccaneer". Cecil B. DeMille, the screen's recognized master of spectacle, has concocted a thrilling and dramatic story of early America in this tale that centers around the firebrand activities of pirate Jean LaFitte whose galleys fought for American independence and whose brilliant victory was the sign of his complete passing from the pages of history. Frederic March, in the swashbucking title role, does a notable job and he is ably supported by Akim Tamiroff and Franciska Gall along with hundreds of extra players. This Paramount picture is done on a grand scale and the battle scenes are staged with great effectiveness.

Kingston: "Swing Your Lady" and "Hawaiian Buckaroo". The wild romancing of a wrestler and a lady blacksmith is the comedy part of the Kingston double feature program while the associate offering is an Hawaiian tale of adventure that is moulded along the same lines as a western thriller. Zenda, Frank McHugh and Dorothy McNulty are featured in the first film and Smith Ballew, former orchestra leader, is starred in the second attraction.

Orpheum: "52nd Street" and "Talent Scout." How one of New York's most famous residential streets changed to a night club section with the resulting sadness to social register families is the crux of the first feature at the Orpheum, a song and dance story with Ian Hunter, Pat Paterson, Zazu Pitts and Leo Carillo. "Talent Scout" tells how personalities are chosen for the theatre and the cast in this one includes Donald Woods, Fred Lawrence and Rosalind Marquis.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.

Kingston: "The Jury's Secret" and "The Two of Us." Live and Learn

Kansas City—Bad weather had caused postponement of westward flights so a solicitious airline passenger agent asked an arrival from the East:

"Are you stopping in Kansas City?"

"Yes," said the incoming passenger, "I have to. I'm the mayor here."

Blushing because he failed to recognize Mayor Bryce Smith, the agent stammered, "You live and you learn."
